DETAILED ACTION

The finality indicated in the office action mailed 3/6/03 has been withdrawn.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 29-38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kawasaki et al., U.S. Patent 5,514,902.

Kawasaki et al. shows the invention as claimed including providing a semiconductor 1; forming a MOS transistor source region 8a in said semiconductor; forming a mos transistor drain region 8b in said semiconductor; and implanting a species 7a, 7b containing carbon (see col. 2-line 61 to col. 3-line 10) beneath the channel region to induce a compressive stress into the channel region (see figs. 1-9 and their description).

Claims 29-38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being clearly anticipated by Huster et al., U.S. Patent 6,426,279.

Huster et al. shows the invention as claimed including providing a semiconductor 1; forming a MOS transistor source region 54 in said semiconductor; forming a mos transistor drain region 54 in said semiconductor; and implanting a species containing carbon beneath the channel region to form a region 44 and to induce a compressive stress into the channel region (see figs. 2A-2D and col. 3-line 66 to col. 5-line 20).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 8/8/03 with respect to Kawasaki et al. have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. It is respectfully submitted that the carbon doped region is beneath the channel region because beneath specifies being lower than but not necessarily directly underlying. Therefore, the doped regions in Kawasaki et al. can be considered to be beneath the channel regions. Furthermore, the carbon doped regions in Kawasaki et al. are lower than and directly underlying the portions of the channel regions that form an interface with the source/drain regions.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
